Procter & Gamble and Walmart Lead the Pack of Shopper Marketing Effie Award Winners in North America

Effie Trophies for Shopper Marketing Effectiveness Awarded at Path to Purchase Institute’s Shopper Marketing Summit to Agencies including Saatchi & Saatchi X, Geometry Global and The Integer Group

Schaumburg, Illinois (March 17, 2015)—Winners of the 5th annual Shopper Marketing Effie Awards were celebrated tonight at the Path to Purchase Institute’s 2015 Shopper Marketing Summit. Shopper Marketing Effie Awards honor work that showcases the best utilization of shopper insights that lead to effective engagements and activations with shoppers along their path to purchase.

Procter & Gamble once again led this year’s competition, winning six Shopper Marketing Effies. Walmart won five Shopper Marketing Effies (four partnering with Procter & Gamble, one partnering with Coca-Cola), while Kimberly-Clark won two Effie trophies. Saatchi & Saatchi X was awarded the most Shopper Marketer Effies among agencies (4), closely followed by Geometry Global (3) and The Integer Group (2).

“This year, the Shopper Marketing Effie Jury saw a maturing of the category, based on the numbers and diverse types of entries we judged,” said Andy Murray, Senior Vice President, Creative at Walmart and Chair of the 2015 North American Shopper Marketing Effie Jury. “The bar keeps rising and the judging becomes more difficult, indicating that Shopper Marketing is a healthy and growing marketing discipline.”

“This is the fifth year of our Shopper Marketing Effie program and the category is more competitive than ever. Of course, an Effie trophy is a major accomplishment for any marketer or retailer,” said Neal Davies, President and CEO of Effie Worldwide. “There is such great learning to be had from this program: insights from Effie winners and our judges expand our collective resources to become more effective marketers across the board”.
